

The following are some of the education-related proposals read out at the congress entitled 'A future which unites us' following an invitation by the leader of the Labour Party Dr. Joseph Muscat.

We explained that we are in favour of transforming the educational system into a tool that produces social justice, where every student succeeds, where the educational system becomes the best catalyst for social mobility and meritocracy.

We also proposed an annual national teachers conference that unites all teachers on the same lines of thought as the congress itself. This is to create synergy between teachers and others who are higher up in the educational structure 'to listen'.

A proposition of an educational system that provides attention to detail: We welcome new schools but more importantly we want to know what happens day in day out, including cleaning as well as the quality and quantity of resources teachers have to work with. Here we are referring to what teachers and students have to encounter during their daily life at school.

We also explained that the word of a teacher can have an impact upon a student's life, as much as a big, brand new school which is equipped with the latest equipment and facilities. This is why we are in favour of 'teacher support and empowerment'. Our goal is to witness more motivated teachers who work in a professional and dignified environment.
